Your comments:	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Great job bending knees to help set top of zone with eyes • HBP – if you didn't see it, check with partner
Suggestions for improvement:	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Plate stance – feet slightly wider apart for balance, heel/instep; don't go set too early; go into set at P starts delivery; little more into slot, less straight over top of catcher • Use your size to advantage – stand tall to make strike and out signals • Mask off on hit balls

Your comments:	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Plate <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ○ Need to setup in the slot, wait for the pitcher to break hands then go down into position and STAY THERE until the catcher has the ball in their hands. ○ Please stay down until the catcher has the ball in their glove. Two problems arise, <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ The movement before the ball arrives changes the eyes perspective of where a ball is.

	<ul style="list-style-type: none">▪ Coming up early will result in extra hits to the chest and face, as well as leaving the upper legs exposed to foul balls.▪ When showing the count, balls are given with the left hand, strikes with the right.• Bases<ul style="list-style-type: none">○ Lead runner is the most important one, stick with them, watching other bases out of the corner of your eyes
Suggestions for improvement:	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Leave at the U12 level until he starts to adopt proper plate skills.• Review your manual for placement behind home plate as well as signals and umpire routines.• Work more games when you can to gain experience
